He is coming with Prueba de vida (2023), his new album produced by Candy Caramelo (Calamaro, Rot, Fito...) and Zurdo himself, recorded between Madrid and Malaga with the pandemic in between. On his mother's side he is related to the Parrilla and Molina de Algeciras family dynasties of Jerez. Manuel conceives flamenco singing, or cante, as a natural, free and unmellowed form of expression rooted in a profound oral tradition. His mentors include Camarón, Juanito Mojama, La Perla and the Lucía family, among others.

Super Heavy Sound is a band that revives the essence of Afro-American dance music from the early 1970s. Combining youthful energy with the experience of its veterans, its members include some of the most outstanding musicians of the current scene in Malaga. In addition to drums, bass, guitar, keyboards and vocals, the band boasts an imposing brass section, essential for the authentic 70s funk flavour, with a total of 8 musicians on stage. Their repertoire is divided into two parts: one that highlights the influences of New Orleans funk, with a special nod to the iconic band The Meters; and another that pays tribute to the incomparable James Brown, one of the fundamental pillars of 20th century music and father of the genre.
